OZW VU University of Amsterdam

The OZW healthcare and welfare training institute is a new landmark for the architectural landscape of the VU University. It embodies an innovative training concept that combines intermediate and higher level vocational training programs and university programs. The window spacing emphasizes the verticality and main lines of the exterior and immediately draws attention to the transparency and vitality of the interior: a playful combination of training centers around atria. The private offices are at the far ends of the building. The public base is transparent and the volume of the lecture hall catches the eye. The training institute is a playful landscape to roam in, see and meet people.
